Manila Occupied By Japs

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Manila and the nearby United States naval base of Cavite fell to the Japanese today.

Both places, the war and navy departments said, had been evacuated of military and naval supplies and equipment before advance units of the enemy arrived.

The loss of Manila, while serious, has not lessened the resistance to the Japanese attacks, the war department said. At Manila all military installations were removed or destroyed where the capital was

HON. JAS. A. MacKINNON GIVES YEAR-END REVIEW

Canada Girds A Industrial, Trade Resources For War

Last Year's Production Must Be Surpassed In 1942 States Minister

OTTAWA, Jan. 2.—(CP)—Canadian business, stimulated by the all-out war effort, reached new high records of production in 1941, "which must be surpassed in 1942," Hon. James A. MacKinnon, minister of trade and commerce, said today in a review of the state of industry.

In 1942, the energies of Canada will be even more completely absorbed into the war effort of the Dominion, now threatened by the Axis powers on the Pacific coast as well as on the Atlantic," Mr. MacKinnon said.

"All the industries which are engaged directly or indirectly to maintain and expand the war effort of Canada must increase their production to the utmost, and every Canadian must ask himself whether he is bearing his full share of the burden and heat of the day. In this unprecedented crisis, Canadians must show that they are worthy of the freedom which they enjoy."

FIGHT FOR LIFE

Canadian business, conducted not for profit, was fighting in the war for its future and for its very life, Mr. MacKinnon said. If it were to continue to exist in the future on the basis of free exchange of commodities for money and of money for commodities, it would be the ultimatum for the defeat of the "Axis gangsters and the destruction of the predatory ideologies for which they stand."

War contracts awarded by the munitions and supply department at the end of September had reached a total of about $1,000,000,000, and that industries might be able to meet out their contracts. $500,000,000 had been entered in the form of capital assistance for construction of new plants, and installation of new machinery and equipment.

Mr. MacKinnon said the production of steel ingots in the first ten months of 1941 had been 1,300,000 above the same period in 1939. Production of motor vehicles for war purposes was up 88 per cent, and construction permits' value was up 14 per cent.

EMPLOYMENT INCREASE

The larger employers in eight leading industries of the Dominion, manufacturing, 12,900 and 1,190,000 workers at the outbreak of war in October, 1939, had increased to 15,000 and 1,300,000 workers, an increase of 38 per cent, while some 24,000 Canadians had been trained in the fighting services.

"When it is remembered that many of our men are overseas, covered in this survey and that smaller employers in the manufacturing industries do not report, it is estimated that the total of Canadian labour engaged in the war effort since September, 1939, is not less than 1,000,000," Mr. MacKinnon said.

It appeared that Canada had already reached a condition of full employment of persons who are normally actively employed, and that further expansion of the war effort would require the bringing into employment of persons who are not normally employed, fully employed, together with the effective direction of the war purposes of those already in employment, the minister said.

In view of the loss of Canadian resources in the first 11 months of 1941, the total value of Canadian exports in the first 11 months of 1941 was $1,471,000,000 compared with $1,081,200,000 in the same period of 1940 and $253,000,000 in 1939.

These latest figures indicated an increase of no less than $446,000,000, or 78 per cent, over the corresponding period of the previous year. These figures are exclusive of our exports of new gold, which amounted to $180,000,000 in the first 11 months of 1941.

EMPIRE INTEGRITY

Noting that Canadian exports ran at the rate of almost $50,000,000 a day during the 11 months of 1941, Mr. MacKinnon said that in ordinary times, "we would be proud and gratified at this magnificent total. In these days, however, the most important consideration is the contribution made by this export to the maintenance of the war effort and to the integrity of the British Empire."

Hitter sought to starve the United Kingdom into surrender, and Canadian trade figures indicated how vigorously his program was being met. In the 11 months of this year Canadian merchandise sent to the United Kingdom valued $600,800,000 compared with $477,000,000 and $253,000,000 respectively in the corresponding periods of 1940 and 1939. In a year of total war, and every shipment of goods sent to the United Kingdom invested risk. Canadian exports were more than doubled when compared with the mainly peacetime period of 1939.

Since Britain was no longer importing luxuries it was assumed that all exports consisted either of food required to maintain the health and strength of the British people or war materials and munitions. Canadian exports to the United Kingdom amounted to $111,000,000 compared with $22,000,000 in the same period in 1939, thus indicating the attempt to isolate the United Kingdom had failed.

Canadian equipment played an important part in the North African campaign and Egypt had become a Canadian base. "The Canadian contribution to 'special causes' concerned with the Libyan campaign. Major increases in Canadian exports to the eastern areas where aggression was being fought were reported. "While exports to Japan declined

Victory Coast Is Proposed By British Leader

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill returned to Washington at 8 a.m. E.S.T. (7 a.m. M.S.T.) Thursday from a four-day visit to Canada.

The Prime Minister welcomed the New Year by proposing a victory toast at a midnight ceremony in the dining car of his special train somewhere in Vermont with members of his staff, newspaper correspondents, the train crew and porters.

Wearing his grey zippered lounge suit, Mr. Churchill walked into the dining car in plain, glass in hand, as the train pulled out of Brattleboro, Vt.

"HERE'S TO 1942"

A few miles south, near the Massachusetts line, Mr. Churchill raised his glass with the toast, "Here's to 1942."

"Here's to a year of toil—a year of struggle and peril."

"And a long step forward to victory."

Americans, British, Canadian and Australians raised a "happy New Year" toast as they drank the toast.

The Prime Minister then pronounced the benediction: "God bless you."

"May we all come through safe and with honor."

The train continued with a whisky and soda.

Mr. Churchill then joined hands with everyone present in a living chain, through Air Marshal Sir Charles Powlett, Canadian Chief of the Air Staff, Major R.A.F. the Air Marshal's clerk, on the train, and the dining car of "Audrey Long Syne."

Mr. Churchill turned to leave the crowd sang, "He's A Jolly Good Fellow."

Mr. Churchill acknowledged the tribute by raising his right hand and the train sang, "Auld Lang Syne" and the dining car of "Audrey Long Syne."

He was believed to have been the first time in British history that a Prime Minister had spent New Year's Eve on a train travelling through a foreign country thousands of miles from his home.

The Prime Minister exchanged good wishes for the New Year with several houses adjacent to the station, and the train sang, "Auld Lang Syne" and the dining car of "Audrey Long Syne."

IN HIGH SPIRITS

Riding southward through the snow-blanketed Canadian countryside, Mr. Churchill kept his staff busy exchanging preparing data for the supplementary economic, financial, and military situation that continued between American and British officials here during his absence.

Reflecting the success of his discussions with Canadian leaders, the renewed vigour of Canada's war effort, and the enthusiastic approval of the Canadian people, the Prime Minister was in high spirits.

On his trip Mr. Churchill informed correspondents he was sure the New Year's Eve celebration was making such excellent progress that decisions of far-reaching importance would be reached soon after he resumed his talks with the President.

MAJOR OBJECTIVES

The Prime Minister broadly hinted that, in charting the development of the war, the major objectives were intensified in Europe and Asia, and in the Atlantic and the Pacific.

"The enemy has asked for total war," he said. "Let us make sure they get it."

"Mr. Britain," as he was popularly acclaimed in Canada, left Ottawa by special train to President Roosevelt's private car at 2:15 p.m. Wednesday after a farewell conference with Prime Minister MacKinnon and the Earl of Athlone, the Governor-General. Since the trip of Mr. Churchill's departure was kept secret only a small crowd saw him off at the station.

Hold Everything

Advanced Soviet troops were believed to be only a few miles from Moshkwa, whose garrison continues to resist the Russian thrusts into the winter warfare.

Reoccupation of Rostov, listed by the Soviet information bureau as one of several potential localities liberated from the Germans in the continued Russian advance. Jan. 1, marked a 4-mile sweep west of Kallan.

It placed the Russians only 30 miles from Rostov, a Volga river port of 200,000 people, a major branch railway and wire lines important in war supply and communication.

placed several buildings close to the church in great peril.

A small hole "was burned through the roof of St. Anthony's Catholic church on 84 avenue, just north of the Metropolitan church, through Air Marshal Sir Charles Powlett, Canadian Chief of the Air Staff, Major R.A.F. the Air Marshal's clerk, on the train, and the dining car of "Audrey Long Syne."

There was a difficult fire to fight. There was so much "joint in the roof and walls, and the fixtures and interior walls were highly varnished and very dry," Chief Magruder told the Bulletin.

"The large number of stairways, provided a draught of air that carried the flames at lightning speed through the highly inflammable interior," the chief added.

The blinding wind and low temperature also added to the difficulties of the fire.

FURNACES BURNING

Firemen said it was fortunate the roof did not cave in at one time. Firemen and beams kept falling now and then, bringing sections of the roof little by little, they said. area were "completely disorganized," the communiqué said.

The Lofoten lie ahead of Germany's sea route to the Arctic fighting front in Russia.

Under Lt.-Col. S. S. Harrison, the Norwegian troops and commandos landed at four different places in the islands, captured a number of German prisoners who gave them valuable information.

The naval force itself, described as light, was manned by British, Norwegian and Polish sailors under Rear Admiral L. H. K. Hamilton.

The admiralty accused the operations mentioned no resistance whatever, bearing out stories of participants in the raid.

The Vaaagse laid to the effect that the number of German soldiers in Norway is not as low as they are with all trying to stop these attacks.

Conversely, one Norwegian sailor, just back from Vaaagse, said today: "All along the coast, Norwegians are praying for British landings."

The raid was planned by the British troops yesterday brought back numerous Norwegians and 22, 1939.

It was in 1935, however, that the south Edmonton Methodist church, built on the site of the old church, was erected. This was the second church on the site, the first having been destroyed by fire in 1910.

HAND-PAINTED WINDOWS

Chinese Assisting In Burma Defence

CHUNGKING, Jan. 2.—(AP)—An army spokesman disclosed today that Chinese troops had entered Burma and been placed under the command of Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, commander-in-chief for India and British Burma.

The spokesman said they had been sent at British request despite Japanese attempts to immobilize Chinese forces by attacks on air bases from the rear. Their number was not disclosed.

They are prepared to send more troops to areas where our assistance is needed," he said.

The first raid on the Lofoten was carried out last March by a naval landing force, with commanders German ships were sunk, many prisoners seized and many resources available to the Nazis destroyed.

Then, last Saturday, another force of German troops landed on Vaaagse, 100 miles north of Bergen, destroying right-hand German ships, including 1,500 tons of cargo, and many prisoners were taken before the British troops yesterday brought back numerous Norwegians and 22, 1939.

Dorothy Dix Says:

Dorothy Dix says that it is almost impossible to perform in moderation. At any rate, few fathers and mothers appear able to just take it in their stride. They overdo it or underdo it. They exert no control over their youngsters or give up grudgingly. This has given up on the fathers and mothers who predict that their few lambs to the wolves. They turn ignorant, unsophisticated girls of 14 or 15 loose on the world to wander among its pitfalls, without guidance from the protection, or even being warned of the dangers that beset them at every step. They give up on their own care in which to speed down the road to destruction. They let them play about with boys whose names they do not even know.

And when they come home reeking with tobacco smoke and the smell of liquor at 5 o'clock in the morning they do not ask them where they have been or what they have done. On the other hand, we have seen mothers who have been made no jittery by the sight of these wild girls, who have been given unsentimental freedom before they knew how to use every particle of liberty. They practically keep their girls locked in a dungeon cell, shut them out of all the fun that belongs to their time of life and generation, and of other youngsters, which is as important a part of every girl's education as learning to read.

Of course, the parents who never let their daughters go to a party unless Mamma or Papa takes them and fetches them home at 10 o'clock; who require Mamma to accompany them from school without dawdling along with any boy and stopping at the drug store for no reason except to see how the world is coming along, honestly believe they are protecting their girls. But nothing could be further from the truth. Instead of keeping their girls from temptation they are leading them into it, for one of the basic principles of human nature is to crave the thing that is denied us.

Refuse to let a girl go to nice parties with nice boys in a nice way and she will go to dance halls with pick-ups. Lock her in her room and she will climb out the window. The surest way to make a match is to oppose it. Commands of girls to married drunkards and ne'er-do-wells because their parents forbade young men the house.

The parents who keep their daughters on the shelf until they are 20 or so in order to keep them unspoiled from the world do them an irreparable wrong, not only in depriving them of all the pleasures of girlhood, which is the only time in life when we are carefree, and can enjoy things with a light heart, but in unfitting them for the world in which they must live. And they practically doom them to old maidhood, for it is in her school days and in her teens that a girl learns how to attract men and develop a technique in dealing with them that older women never learn.

Charts show Smart Technique

If you're a fair for drawing and a desire to make money (good fashion artists in department stores and on smart magazines command good prices) this may be your field.

You can learn, at home, the professional way to draw fashions. Guide lines and charts will help.

When sketching a figure, first draw the guide lines—a vertical "line of balance" around which to build the figure, and two pairs of parallel lines—one pair to place shoulders and bust, one for waist and hips.

Following these guide lines, sketching the figure is easy. The side that supports the body weight is drawn in sharp, angular lines; the other side is smooth.

Guide lines and charts also simplify drawing head and body in correct proportion.

Our 24-page instruction book has these guide lines and charts and shows how to draw lovely figures in all sorts of poses. Explains perspective, foreshortening, technique in the drawing of clothes, textures, accessories.

Your Baby And Mine

Every mother discovers, to her astonishment, that her baby is a person. Each baby gets startled on pretty much the same routine, and yet before the baby is two months old the chances are good that he will have deviated far from it.

There is nothing to worry about on this score. If every child has an opportunity to eat five or six times a day, when newborn, and to sleep, usually by his lack of hunger that he is being fed too often, the mother certainly should not hesitate to feed less frequently. The reverse is likewise true. Baby may be started on a four-hour schedule and show himself discontented with as few meals. In such case there is no harm in feeding him on the three-hour schedule.

HUNGER RHYTHMS

In a word, babies are far from alike. Their needs for food may be approximately the same but their "hunger rhythms" are not. And it is the paucity of hunger, coming on periodically, which causes the baby to open his mouth and cry until it is closed with food.

No matter what routine a baby begins, it is pretty certain that shortly—perhaps as soon as six weeks, he won't want to be eating more than four times a day. Babies two months old are very apt to sleep from 6 to 8 if their daytime rations are generous and they are allowed to sleep. If a conscientious parent shakes a baby awake in order to get him to take that 10 p.m. bottle, he has no chance to outgrow the habit of eating at night. If left to sleep until he awakens of his own accord, the habit of sleeping all night is very quickly established.

The more we know about hunger and appetite and the differences in individual babies the more completely mother can be when the child deviates from the eating habits of her neighbor's baby. The person who is to be satisfied is the baby himself. If his nourishment is adequate, if his meals are regular, if he isn't terribly impatient when he has five, four or three

McKenney On Bridge

By W. M. MCKENNEY, Amateur's Card Authority

The national mixed pairs tournament at Richmond was one of the greatest events in the history of the game. It was won by Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Glick of Miami, Fla., disproving the theory that husbands and wives cannot play bridge together. The runner-up were Harry Feinberg of Cleveland and Miss Ann Bryant of Kansas City.

Without a doubt, the greatest mixed pair combinations ever assembled participated in the event, and during the first sessions of play it was a toss-up. The Glicks thought they were in a bad position, as they were 20th at the end of the two qualifying rounds, but they passed the 27 pairs meals a day. The parent will know soon enough, by baby's own behavior, whether his routine is the one that keeps his weight going upward, his disposition sunny.

Your Figure, Madame!

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Everyone is relieved to see the last of 1941. We know that the New Year coming up is going to be a tough one, but our morale is higher than it has ever been. We can face anything.

The best start you and I can give it is to make a victory resolution that we will be healthy. The health of body or of mind is defeat. Health alone is victory. That observation by Sir Walter Scott might have been pointed today.

VICTORY DIET
To get into the best possible physical condition, begin now to follow a victory diet. It will calm you down and pick you up at the same time. Let's have no more sugar bun and coffee breakfasts, or hamburger and coffee lunches, or meat, potatoes and pie dinners. Those menus are no help in warding off war illness—but in the past they have been typically Canadian.

Like the average diet, it contains enough protein, sugar, starch and fat. But it is lacking in calcium, and vitamins A, B1 and C. We used to call calcium lime and thought of it mainly as material for bones and teeth. But it is essential in the diet is extremely important to healthy nerves. And this is certainly a time for nervous stability.

In England, it has been found that the increased consumption of milk and dried milk acts as a buffer against stress. We have plenty of milk over here, and ample stocks of cheese. These are the best sources of calcium. Let every adult make it his and her business to get a full pint of milk a day and to see that every child gets a quart. One ounce of cheese is the vitamin and mineral equivalent of one glass of whole milk. Milk or cheese, together with the green vegetables, furnish the 53 grams of calcium needed daily by every adult.

The vitamin deficiencies can be overcome by the daily use of a green or yellow vegetable, egg and dairy products, whole grains and fresh fruits.

You can take the typically bad diet and turn it into a balanced menu with this plan: Add an egg, fruit juice and whole wheat toast to the breakfast—leave off the sugar bun. To the luncheon, add a chopped green salad and a glass of milk or a serving of cheese. The hamburger is fine. Still hungry?

Then have some fresh fruit. And for dinner, take the meat and potatoes plus a cooked green or yellow vegetable, a glass of milk, and dessert.

The inclusion of the protective foods is a very minor change to make in the diet—and they are the victory victuals.

Happy New Year!
Your Devotion,
IDA JEAN KAIN.
